

Top Sales Professional Wanted Now!

Could you be the great sales person I'm looking for to work part-time (initially) and handle sales presentations for my growing consulting business?

Busy business owner buried with far too much to do needs a very organized, experienced sales person to speak with prospects and present proposals to clients

It's 10.07 pm on a Wednesday night and I'm still in my office working!

I've got lots of experience helping local business clients increase sales and profits by taking their businesses online, and I'm ready to take this business to the next level.

I'm stuck working late again because I've spent the best part of today contacting and talking with prospects instead of working on clients' marketing campaigns, and now I have to catch up. And to tell you the truth, prospecting and presenting is not really what I'm best at.

I need a sales professional who can help me to ramp up this business quickly by generating new leads, presenting my services to them, and turning them into clients.

You'll be working part-time to start with (so you can stay with your current job if you want to) while we gauge how fast the growth is going to be, but if things work out as I expect, then my business model is totally scalable (I have a global team who do all of the implementation) and your earnings will be virtually unlimited.

Can you help make my client contact and sales presentation headaches vanish by taking over that part of my business for me?

Are you somebody who is superb at setting up appointments, consultative selling, and getting people to buy into your ideas... a loyal, hardworking get-out-there-and-sell type person who always follows through and almost never misses a sales target... you're so productive your last employer considered hiring two people to replace you after you left?

Are you an entrepreneur (or intrepeneur) who's comfortable selling a much-needed, high-value professional service to small business owners... comfortable in a small business environment where priorities can change quickly... a super organized get-it-done type person who's comfortable selling on the phone and in person?

If so, we should talk, because you might just be the great sales person I'm looking for to help me take my business to the next level. You'll have expert marketing and lead generation support, and I'll give you full initial and ongoing training in the system I use and how to sell it effectively.

The hours are negotiable, and you'll be paid a generous commission for all sales you bring in on a contract basis. And if you are a real star, I'll cut you into the business with a profit share after you prove yourself.

I don't care if you haven't done sales in a while, or where you live, and you don't need a resume to apply.

Think you are the person I'm looking for? For more details, simply call me on 0418 788 482, and lets kick this thing out of the park together.

Hopefully with your help, I'll be able to put in more hours each day helping clients to increase their small business profits, instead of doing something I'm not very good at.

Regards

Rocky Tapscott
0418 788 482